MEMORANDUM OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Statement of the Objects and Reasons for the Bill

The principal object of this Bill is to amend the Kenya Information and Communications Act (Cap. 411A) to align the Act with the Constitution, give full effect to the re-designation of the sector regulator as the Communications Authority of Kenya and update the legal framework governing telecommunications, radio communication, broadcasting, postal and courier services, electronic transactions and digital platforms.

The Bill seeks, in particular, to—

(a) replace references to the Communications Commission of Kenya with references to the Communications Authority of Kenya and delete spent and obsolete provisions, including the transitional provisions in the Fifth Schedule;

(b) strengthen the corporate governance of the Authority by providing for the office, qualifications and functions of the Corporation Secretary;

(c) provide for standards for, and the type approval of, electronic communications equipment and systems;

(d) enable the Authority to grant authorizations for scientific research, trials and experimentation in respect of new and emerging technologies and services;

(e) extend the regulatory framework for postal services to courier services;

(f) reclassify broadcasting services into public, commercial and community broadcasting, provide for the designation of the public broadcaster by the Authority and provide for the categorization of broadcasting service licences by regulations;

(g) reform the subscriber registration framework so that registration obligations attach to the subscriber rather than to the SIM-card;

(h) provide for infrastructure sharing, a national ICT infrastructure mapping system and the regulation of digital platforms;

(i) review the penalties under the Act, provide for graduated enforcement measures for breach of licence conditions and introduce a general penalty;

(j) restructure the dispute resolution framework by vesting the hearing of complaints against licensees in the Authority, providing for appeals from decisions of the Authority to the Tribunal and for the appointment of the chairperson and members of the Tribunal by the

Judicial Service Commission, and decoupling the Act from the Media Council Act (Cap. 411B);

(k) give legislative effect to the decision of the High Court in Geoffrey Andare v Attorney General & 2 others [2016] eKLR by repealing section 29 of the Act; and

(l) provide for a general power of the Cabinet Secretary to make regulations under the Act.

In particular—

Clause 1 provides for the short title of the Bill.

Clause 2 seeks to amend the long title of the principal Act by substituting the reference to the Communications Commission of Kenya with a reference to the Communications Authority of Kenya, and by deleting the spent reference to the transfer of the functions, powers, assets and liabilities of the Kenya Posts and Telecommunication Corporation.

Clause 3 seeks to amend section 2 of the principal Act, which is the interpretation section, to—

(a) delete the definitions of "Commission", "former Commission", "Media Council", "private broadcaster" and "registration agent", which are rendered unnecessary by the amendments proposed in the Bill;

(b) substitute the words "county government" for the words "local authority" in the definition of "e-Government services", in keeping with the system of devolved government under Chapter Eleven of the Constitution;

(c) extend the definitions of "post" and "courier services" to cover courier services, parcels and consignments;

(d) require a community broadcasting service to be independent of control by government, commercial institutions and political interests, in keeping with Article 34 of the Constitution;

(e) substitute the definition of "dominant telecommunications service provider" with a definition of "dominant licensee", so that the criteria for dominance under sections 4 and 23 of the Competition Act (Cap. 504) apply to all licensees;

(f) redefine "public broadcaster" as a licensee designated as such under the proposed section 46E; and

(g) introduce new definitions of "commercial broadcaster" and "licensee".

Clause 4 seeks to make a general amendment to the principal Act by substituting the word "Authority" for the word "Commission" wherever it appears, so as to harmonise the Act with the re-designation of the regulator as the Communications Authority of Kenya.

Clause 5 seeks to amend section 7 of the principal Act to empower the Board to waive fees, subject to the approval of the National Treasury, so that any waiver of revenue due to the Authority is subject to the principles of public finance under Chapter Twelve of the Constitution.

Clause 6 seeks to insert a new section 11A in the principal Act to provide for the appointment and role of the Corporation Secretary by the Board.

Clause 7 seeks to amend section 19(2) of the principal Act by deleting paragraph (g), which requires the annual estimates of the Authority to provide for the salaries, allowances and other expenses of the staff of the Tribunal. The amendment secures the financial independence of the Tribunal from the Authority, whose decisions the Tribunal hears on appeal.

Clause 8 seeks to amend section 22(1) of the principal Act to extend the period within which the Board is required to prepare and submit its annual report to the Cabinet Secretary from three months to six months after the end of each financial year.

Clause 9 seeks to amend section 23(1) of the principal Act by deleting the reference to public payphone and directory information services, being legacy services that are no longer of regulatory significance.

Clause 10 seeks to amend section 24(2) of the principal Act to increase the maximum fine for operating a telecommunication system or providing telecommunication services without a licence from one million shillings to five million shillings.

Clause 11 seeks to amend section 25A of the principal Act by deleting subsections (3), (4) and (5), which permit spectrum licence fees exceeding one billion shillings to be paid in instalments over a period of up to ten years, and by making a consequential amendment to subsection (2). The effect of the amendment is that every applicant shall pay the prescribed licence fees in full before the grant of a licence.

Clause 12 seeks to amend section 27(4) of the principal Act to increase the maximum fine for contravening regulations made under that section from three hundred thousand shillings to one million shillings.

Clauses 13, 14 and 15 seek to amend the subscriber registration framework. Clause 13 seeks to amend section 27A of the principal Act so that the obligation of a telecommunications operator to obtain the particulars of a person attaches to the registration of a subscriber rather than to the sale of a SIM-card, thereby accommodating embedded SIMs and other digital identifiers, and to delete subsection (2)(a) on the registration of existing subscribers, which is spent. Clause 14 seeks to repeal section 27B of the principal Act on registration agents, consequent upon the deletion of the definition of "registration agent". Clause 15 seeks to amend section 27D of the principal Act, including its marginal note, by substituting the word "subscriber" for the expression "SIM-card", so that the regulations under that section relate to subscriber registration.

Clause 16 seeks to amend section 28 of the principal Act to increase the maximum fine for dishonestly obtaining a telecommunication service from one million shillings to five million shillings.

Clause 17 seeks to repeal section 29 of the principal Act on the improper use of a licensed telecommunication system. The High Court, in Geoffrey Andare v Attorney General & 2 others [2016] eKLR (Petition No. 149 of 2015), declared section 29 unconstitutional on the ground that it unjustifiably limited the freedom of expression guaranteed under Article 33 of the Constitution. The repeal gives legislative effect to that decision.

Clause 18 seeks to amend section 34(3) of the principal Act to increase the maximum fine for running an unlicensed telecommunication system, or providing services or connecting apparatus not specified in a licence, from one million shillings to five million shillings.

Clause 19 seeks to insert a new sub-Part titled "Electronic Communications Equipment Type Approval" immediately after section 34 of the principal Act.
